

What I Need is Your Smile

Words and Music © 2002 Robert Edgar

What I need is your smile
Life's too long without it, I'll wait fore'er.
If time gets exhausted, how would I prepare?
Bitter words will chill your heart.
Build up your love; time now to start.
For what I need is your smile.

What plants need is to bloom.
Buds on a flower are silent plumes.
Quietly waiting like darkened rooms.
All barren tombs if no flower;
But, with its scent, fully empowered
For what plants need is to bloom.

Without you, to whom will I sing?
If I can't sing to you, I'll sing to the waves.
If I can't sing to you, I'll sing to invention.
If I can't sing to you, I'll sing to Shiva.
If I can't sing to you, I'll sing at the walls.

Beauty is lost to anger and science.

Harmony's arches require reliance.

What we need is a heart
One shared should do it, cause the chill to go
Warming your cheeks; set your eyes aglow.
Senses start knowing to feel,
Cynical life, learning what is real.
Don't let grace depart...
Attract it again, with your smile, a bloom,
And our heart.
